WHAT'S IN A NAME - The Sunday we celebrate this weekend is known by various names that all highlight, in one way or another, the spiritual importance of the day. Technically speaking this weekend we celebrate the Second Sunday of Easter, or the Sunday that falls within the Octave of Easter. An octave of a feast refers to an eight-day feast period commencing with the feast itself. The idea behind an octave is that the joy of the feast day cannot be contained to one twenty-four hour period. Moreover the number eight is a reference to the Resurrection, in that Christ's triumph over death initiates a new creation (the original week being seven days). For this reason, early baptismal fonts were often shaped as octagons. After Pope Paul VI's calendar revisions in 1969 Easter is one of only two solemnities that carries an octave, the second being Christmas. Another name for the day is Quasimodo Sunday. This peculiar names comes from the first two words of the opening Antiphon at Mass (we typically substitute a hymn for the antiphon) which is taken from the Second Letter to St. Peter (Quasi modogenitiinfantes, rationabile, sine dolo lac concupisciteut in eocrescatis in salutemsgustastisquoniamdulcis Dominus). Quasimodo, the protagonist of Victor Hugo's 1831 novel The Hunchback of Notre Dame was so named due to the fact that he was found abandoned on the doorsteps of Notre Dame Cathedral on the Sunday after Easter, AD 1467. In Chile Quasimodo Sunday is celebrated the Cuasimodo Feast. On this day cowboys known as Huasos ride in adorned carriages and accompany the priest while he gives Holy Communion to the infirm. In the Eastern Rites this day is known as Saint Thomas Sunday, as the Gospel reading is always John 20:19-29. This gospel recounts the appearance of Christ to his disciples, with Thomas the Apostle present, on the Sunday following his resurrection. Another traditional name is Low Sunday, perhaps given this name because of the contrast with the high festival of Easter on the preceding Sunday. Additionally this day has been known as Dominica in Albis, a name that comes from the ancient habit by which the newly baptized wore a white robe or tunic following their baptism on Easter for seven days. The Sunday following Easter was when the white robe was put away came to be known as dominica in albis depositis or "Sunday in which the white clothes are put away." Finally the day is known as Divine Mercy Sunday. This day was designated as such by Pope John Paul II due to the fact that it serves as the last day of the novena to the Divine Mercy of Jesus, a devotion given to a Polish nun, St. Faustina. It is interesting to note that Pope John Paul II died in April 2005, which was the vigil of Divine Mercy Sunday. In light of this he was beatified on Divine Mercy Sunday (May 1, 2011) and was canonized on Divine Mercy Sunday (April 27, 2014).

NOTABLE AND QUOTABLE - “The world offers you comfort, but you were not made for comfort. You were made for greatness.” Pope Benedict XVI
